

OLA Super Conference
February 26, 2010
Expert PubMed Searching

Question	Answer
Reasons to Search PubMed	1) Premier database in the life and health sciences 2) Most current Medline database
Cost	Free
How to access	http://pubmed.gov
Free Full Text	Some free full text: 1) Bookshelf 2) PMC
PICO	Patient Intervention Comparison Intervention Outcome
Ways to Search	1) Novice Discovery Tool or Google style searching 2) Advanced
Search Tips	Boolean Operators Limits Related Articles Review Articles
MeSH	Medical Subject Heading
Consumer Health Information Available	Yes - MedlinePlus
Advanced Search Features	MeSH Database , Subject Tree, Subheadings, explode, focus, search history and combining sets, limits (e.g. English, date range, ages etc.)
Display Formats	Summary Abstract Medline

Import Citations re: bibliographic management software	RefWorks EndNote Reference Manager
Citation Processing Options	Print, Save, Email, Send to Clipboard
Save Results & Keep Current	My NCBI
Journal Title Search	Journals Database
Verify a Citation	Single Citation Matcher
Clinical Queries	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) Clinical Study Category 2) Systematic Reviews 3) Medical Genetics
PubMed Workbook	http://library.queensu.ca/health/education/meds/pubmedfeb2010.pdf Detailed tutorial created by Sandra Halliday highlighting most of the features identified during the presentation.
Your own question(s)

Contact:

Sandra Halliday, B.Sc., M.Sc., M.L.I.S.
Health Sciences Librarian
Bracken Health Sciences Library, Botterell Hall
Queen's University
Kingston, Ontario

Email: halliday@queensu.ca
Tel.: 613 533-6000 ext. 77568