

A few of our favourite things...

audacity.sourceforge.net/

A free, open source, software for recording and editing sounds (do I hear podcasts in your future?).

dafont.com

FREE fonts online. We found our spooky Halloween fonts here.

design-seeds.com

Need colour palette inspiration? You should check out this site.

gimp.org

Like photoshop, but FREE

Librariandesignshare.org

A place where we go to “borrow” ideas from the creative minds of librarians. Hosted by April Aultman Becker & Veronica Arellano Douglas.

mailchimp.com

A mass email solution. Their free account option suits our needs just fine.

thenounproject.com

A website that catalogs symbols, many of which are free to use.

powtoon.com

Ok, we'll admit it, we used Camtasia Studio to create our videos so far, but Powtoon is FREE and it gives you access to lots of great images and makes your presentations/videos look very professional.

www.easel.ly

Create infographics so you can represent your data through powerful visuals

License Free Images:

We often use Google's “Usage Rights” Search Tool or <https://www.flickr.com/commons>

Find us

WORDPRESS

<https://smhlibrary.wordpress.com/>

Our blog where we post our monthly newsletter and more

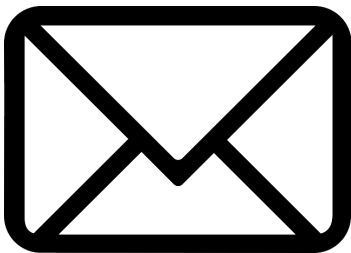

St. Michael's Hospital Health Sciences Library

That's what our YouTube channel is called. Find our award winning Wolters Kluwer video there!

Health Sci Library @SMHealthSciLib

hslibrary@smh.ca

