BIBFRAME is an attempt to achieve that

There won't be any Semantic Web that any mortal can understand until librarians help build it!

Exposing Library Data to the Web: Early Adopter Pilot Program

The Future for Libraries!

Early Adopter Program

- Practical Practitioner Linked Data & BIBFRAME Essentials for up to 12 participants
- Readiness Assessment – analysis of existing data loading of up to 100,000 MARC records into Libhub
- Local pilot project with up to 500,000 MARC records
- Sponsored retreat to Libhub Summit in Denver, CO
- Alumni Community – access to a large network of resources and fellow participants; regular discussions and monthly meetings with the Zepheira Team

Zepheira Focused on 3 Key Areas

1. Awareness and Education

- What is Linked Data and BIBFRAME?
- How will it effect my job, the library, and our users?

2. Readiness Assessment

- Who/what's involved – staff, providers, content, systems?
- MARC analysis and sample conversion to BIBFRAME

3. Implementation and Exploration

- Data migration and transformation
- Publishing to the web via Libhub
- Linking back to Discovery Layer or PAC

2015....On the road to LibHub

February

- Kickoff meeting & self-paced training begins

April

- Readiness Assessment process

May

- Sample set of records sent to Zepheira

June

- Sample records converted to Bibframe linked data format and returned to HPL for review

2015....On the road to LibHub

June

- Change management meeting

July

- Readiness Assessment Report

August

- Complete database sent to Zepheira for Bibframe transformation

September/October

- HPL Team reviews the converted data – feedback to Zepheira & updated database submissions

November

- HPL data is published!

2016 January -

- Media announcements to staff & customers
- Social media campaign in process
- Regular database updates submitted to Zepheira

How does this fit into my workflow?

Linked Data Roadmap Recommendations

Change Management Exploration

Stakeholder Impact & Influence					Communication Methods
Stakeholder Name	Stakeholder Description	Impact of Change on Stakeholder Group	Motivators	Points of Resistance	Key Interests	Possible Communication Methods	Owner	Comments
Communities Served	People who access library resources	Will people understand the new ways in which they will access resources and how these are going to be better? People will be able to find the resources on the Web that they couldn't before. New users can register online for library cards in order to gain access. Hamilton Public will need to find ways to make sure access to resources is streamlined for customers. With increased visibility on the Web comes higher demand. Will there be enough resources available for customers?	If there is an easy, homogenous experience this will motivate customers to continue to come to the library.	The only point of resistance discussed was that if the user experience is inconvenient or confusing this will deter customers from taking advantage of resources.	Still TBD. Hamilton Public will need to have more conversations with internal teams to figure out what to communicate to customers. These conversations will happen after the results of the data pilot are seen. This will be a soft launch to start.	Use examples to highlight the changes for customers. Set up information booths to "show and tell" at the branches and show customers what's new. Perhaps put together short videos to share insights with customers.	Core Team / IT / Comms Dept	Should things like archives be available to customers? Hamilton is wrestling with this issue. Not everything is in a state that people can access. Could Zepheira help pull together a poster session template? Library and Zepheira logos could be plugged in before printing. Can Zepheira help create pre-recorded videos that might appeal to customers?

LibHub Initiative – Hamilton’s Results

Table 2.0 // Data Analysis Summary

1. 88,466 MARC records analyzed during May and June of 2015
2. Input Format: MARCXML
3. Output Format: BIBFRAME, vocabulary available at <http://bibfra.me>
4. 88,466 MARC records converted to 448,987 BIBFRAME Resources
5. 619,804 BIBFRAME Resources had an occurrence of folding indicating this data is highly connected

BIBFRAME Resources

88,466 MARC records converted to 448,987 BIBFRAME Resources

Results from Early Adopters

- All 12 of the Early Adopters have moved off the labs.libhub experimental site to the Library.Link Network
- The Early Adopters' data was immensely helpful in Zepheira's discussions and showcasing of library data to Google and Bing
- As of Jan. 25, 2016 – 374 library locations are “live” with 600 more locations in the queue to become live on the network
- The current 374 locations represent approx. 14.7 million MARC records and provide approx. 62 million URIs to the Web

On the Horizon....

- Atlas Systems and Zepheira are exploring converting non-MARC EAD/Dublin Core data into the Library.Link Network for web visibility (ArchiveSpace open source platform)
- Using Google's voice searching tool to connect users to your library resources

Options for Viewing Transformed Data

Excellent! The transformation and diagnostics process was successful. Feel free to bookmark this page to come back to it in the future. Now that you have, you're ready to begin!

- 1 To better understand your uploaded data first look at the  MARC Field Diagnostics Viewer
- 2 Now take a look at the  BIBFRAME Resource Viewer to help better understand the MARC Records to BIBFRAME Resources transformation process.
- 3 And finally here is a  BIBFRAME Work-focused Navigator or a  BIBFRAME Collection Navigator to illustrate how your data might look like in a traditional discovery application.
- 4 Don't forget to  Download your RDF BIBFRAME data

Phase 2:

Readiness Assessment: Data Pilot

- Sample data sent to Zepheira
  - 88,466 records sent in MARC XML
  - Print , DVDs, Music CDs, E-books, Local History, Juvenile and Adult
- Data Assessment Results
  - Hamilton Public Library MARC records converted to 448,987 BIBFRAME “Resources.”
  - Hamilton Public Library’s data is highly connected.

“Highly Connected”

- As Linked Data entities, BIBFRAME resources that are recognized as being the same based on their complete set of properties (i.e. subjects, people, places) are richly interconnected and have higher visibility to Webharvesters.
- Connectivity is the key to discoverability on the Web.

Phase 3: Publish Data in BIBFRAME

- Extract entire database in MARC XML and send to Zepheira via ftp [ now via new uploader]
- Approx. 350,000 bib records
- Data transformed into BIBFRAME
- Review of Data by HPL
