Canada is connected to Syria because we are sending soldiers and aircraft to fight against a terrorist group called ISIS. ISIS is a group whose goal is to take control of the Middle East and ruling under their idea of the Islamic Law. ISIS is causing conflict in Syria, Iraq and other Middle Eastern countries. Canada is deploying aircrafts (CF-18) to the middle east to help defend it from extremists. One of the missions the fighter jets have been sent on was to destroy a hideout, weapons and an explosive warehouse. It was a hard decision to send soldiers after the recent conflict in Afghanistan where 158 soldiers died. In the House of Commons, half of the people their thought that it would be best to not let the western countries get involved before creating even more conflict and having this violence spread, while the other half thinks that Canada should take action and take a stand against ISIS. Canada has been training Iraqi soldiers to fight against the terrorist group and protect their country.

Canada is connected to Chad because when people there are forced to leave their homes they usually go to refugee camp. People who have to stay there often don't go to school or work because they rarely have any in refugee camp. Whenever they are there it is always boring and there is nothing to do. When a canadian group called ONEXONE heard about this they wanted to help. They made a bunch of basketball and volleyball courts in different refugee camps. They provided balls,nets and other equipment. In the end over 12,500 kids were able to play, have fun and be happy in all the boredom and sadness in refugee camp.

I thought that there would at least be something to do at a refugee camp, But there isn't anything at all?

this paragraph reminds me of the Syrian refugee problem except it's a lot more different. the paragraph has a great structure

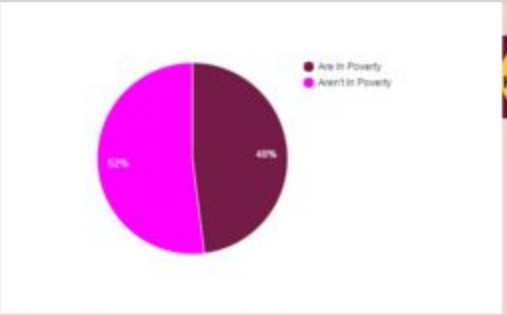
Wow! 12,500 kids in refugee camps is a lot.I didn't expect refugee camps to be big enough for many sport courts before yesterday,when i read a similar article about syrian refugees.

What are Canada and Canadians doing to support the Global Goals ?

Foreign Affairs, Trade and Development Canada Website



ZERO HUNGER

2.5 million people suffer from hunger in Niger also 48% percent of people in Niger live in poverty.

Zero hunger has been a problem for many years. The United Nations have started to change this. This is an important global goal so people don't starve.

1/10th of the world is hungry!

This year a huge number of 795 million people are suffering from hunger. Not only that but 98% of those people are in developing countries.

The United Nations helped Niger by donating money. It may not be a lot but it does help! The United Nations donate only around few dollars.

United Nations

1 in 10 people in Toronto is hungry.

In Toronto Canada there are food banks that people rely on every year. Nearly 800,000 visits per year! That's nearly 1/6th of the people in Toronto! That is about it Canada hasn't done much about Niger.

Niger - Zero Hunger
The United Nations are helping by delivering money to the poor people in Niger. Canada however isn't doing much. Canada does help itself by having food banks all over Canada.

Flores Indonesia is a very hot place. That's why the people who live there use bars instead of glass for Windows.
The bars also help keep it cool. In this place some homes have stilts. Stilts help keep snakes and lots of other animals big or small out. Being high up also keeps the home cool. R.M.

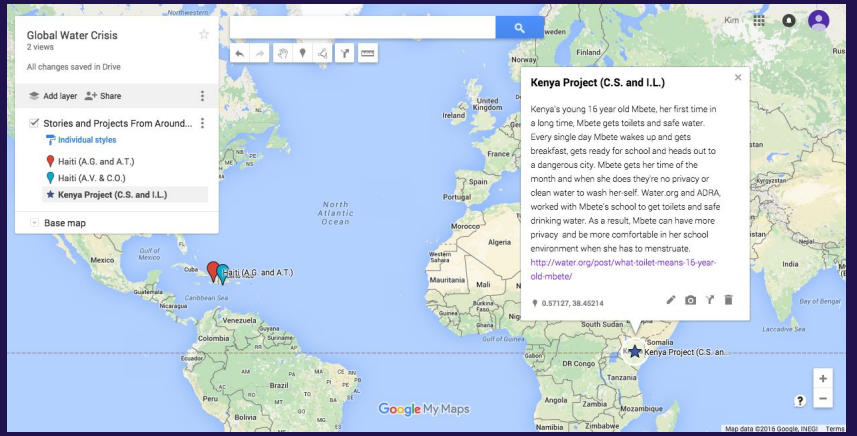
Google My Maps does not have a revision history so you are unable to retrieve past versions if worked gets deleted



Consider...

- Changing permissions to view only after working sessions with students
- Making a copy of the map (File>Make a copy) after each working session
- Having students work on Google Docs/Slides/Drawings and insert a shareable link into the text box on the shared map.
